Final Year Project 2024/2025

Topic: Classification of high-dimensional data

Supervisor: Ming-Yen Cheng

Description: Classification is a fundamental problem in statistics and machine learning. There exist many methods for classification of high-dimensional data, including support vector machine, neural network, random forest, and so on. This project is aimed at comparing the performance of several different classification algorithms via simulation study and applying them to some data sets.