- Conditional Density Estimation Based on Finite Mixture Modeling

  The finite Gaussian mixture model is a valuable tool for estimating joint density functions of multivariate data. This project aims to develop an algorithm that uses the density function approximation by the finite mixture Gaussian model to estimate generalized nonlinear conditional density functions for multivariate data.